Why "Mr. Million" reads out-of-date newspapers, to

You'll see him sitting quietly in a public library. Leafing through back issues of your local newspaper. And you'd never dream that he was considering your town for a new million-dollar industrial plant.

But "Mr. Million" knows how important a town's record of progress can be in selecting a plant site. He wants to know if new schools, roads, public works have been built. If the community supports industrialization and would welcome new factories . . . if, over the years, labor-management relations have been good or bad. The answers to questions like these, obtained from old newspapers, clearly reveal whether a community is sufficiently progressive to be considered as a site for a new plant.

You can't rewrite old newspapers. But you can help make good news by supporting progressive projects, working for civic improvements, taking an active part in industrial development. Help your town increase its reputation as an alert, forward-looking community . . . the kind that attracts new plants and with them more jobs, greater prosperity.

...ject except music. She simply could not sing, though she tried very hard. Wish not read this book and learn how one squeaky little voice with no tune at all proved of great value. I, too, have red hair, freckles and though I try hard, I simply cannot sing. Probably this is why I feel so close to the little mermaid" —Teresa Ragland, Grade 5, Vera School.

"I am in the third grade. I have read ten library books this term, I liked best of all, "Wheel On The Chimney" by Margaret Wise Brown. This book tells of storks building their nest on chimneys. I think a chimney is a funny place for a bird to build a nest. I'm sure anyone would enjoy this book." Josie Mcginnon, Vera School.

"My teacher thinks I am improving in reading. I believe that the reading of a lot of library books will help us to be good readers. I like all of the books but best of all, I belive, "Archie Angel" by Margot Austin is the one I like best. Archie didn't like to do the things his Mother wanted him to do. He wished to be a chicken on earth. After he got his wish, he found it was not good to have his wish come true.

Wouldn't you like to know why Archie was sorry to have his wishes come true?" Kathy Ferguson, Grade 4, Vera School.

If you have been wishing for "that" special something to give you the Christmas spirit of the season, may we recommend that you come by the County library to see the following books:

"Something For Christmas by Palmer Brown, Harper, 1958.

This is the story of a little mouse's search for a very special Christmas gift — an enchancing, lovely story — beautifully illustrated with the true spirit of Christmas.

Christmas is a Time of Giving by Joan Anglund, Harcourt c1961. Here is a book of wonder and delight for young and old to cherish and to share throughout the year."

The Wood Carver by Grace Noll Crowell, Augsburg Publishing House, 1954. This book is dedicated to all lovers of the Christ Child, and to all who find pleasure in the workmanship of a true artist's hand."

The Animals Came First by Jean Louise Welch, Oxford Univ. Press, c1948.

"There was a strange sweet sound in the stable — the cat heard it first and woke up the donkey to ask him what it was— a touching Christmas story in word and picture that children will cherish at all seasons of the and of their Christmas "Want list" — a tiny 3x8 book in size but one that carries tons of wisdom!

"The Miracle Dish" by Opal Wheeler, Dutton, 1957.

Opal Wheeler, author of so many popular stories, down now on her own childhood experiences to tell the charming and nostalgic story of a typical Christmas in the early 1900's.

"Snow Over Bethlehem" by Katherine Milhous. Scribner's Sons, c 1945.

This beautiful and unique American Christmas story belongs to all our children, for it takes place in our own Christmas city — Bethlehem, Penn. Hidden in a very old book and in the yellowed pages of old diaries, was the thrilling tale of how the children of the Moravian settlement at Nazareth, Penn., went to Bethlehem at Christmas time for protection from Indians. Katherine Milhous has brought the story to light and has made it glow with color.

"THE Well of the Star" by Elizabeth Coatsworth. Coward-McCann, 1941.

"On the road to Bethlehem there is a well called the Well of the Star. The legend goes that the three Wise Men, on their journey to the Manger, lost sight of the star that was guiding them. Pausing to water their camels at the well they found it again reflected in the water." Dr. Daniel Poling in the "Christian Herald" says, "One of the loveliest Christmas stories I have read in a long time".

"The Book of Bells by Satis Coleman, John Day, Inc. 1938.

The legend of the Christmas Bells, the magic of bells — Bells of Primitive people — the ranking of Bells — all go into the making of this most informative book.

"The First Christmas Tree" by Henry tVan Dyke — scribners, c 1936.

A classic written in 1897 —but one which all should know.

Many more Christmas titles, too numerous to mention, await you —

Everywhere, everywhere Christmas tonight!

Christmas in lands of the fir tree and pine,

Christmas in lands of the palm tree and vine,

Christmas where snow peaks stand solemn and white,

Christmas where cornfields lie sunny and bright,

Everywhere, everywhere, Christmas tonight!

For the Christ Child who comes is the Master of all,

No place too great and no cottage too small:

The angels who welcome Him sing from the heights,

"In the city of David, a King in state tonight."

Everywhere, everywhere, Christmas tonight!

—Phillip Brooks from Christ and the Fine Arts

New low rate for homes with modern electric water heating

December 1, VEPCO offered a new home electric rate that substantially reduced kilowatt-hour costs. The key to the saving is a clean, silent, automatic Electric Storage Water Heater. Check the facts given here. If they fit, or can be made to fit your home, send the reply coupon promptly.

Note, if you heat your home electrically it's especially important to qualify for this new, reduced residential rate. All you need is to include a modern Electric Storage Water Heater in your home. Send the coupon.

If you have an Electric Storage Water Heater, or plan to install one, you can qualify for the new money-saving rate. Send the coupon now to have your installation approved.

If your home has 2 electric meters you can qualify simply by letting VEPCO change your installation to one meter. Send the reply coupon promptly to start saving on your kilowatt-hours.

If your home electric bill carries a separate "WH" water heating charge as shown here, you can qualify for the new saving. Check and return the coupon to VEPCO now for full facts.

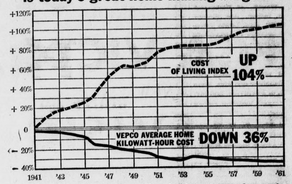
Here's why Electricity is today's great home-making bargain



To spread the joy of modern Electric Living, VEPCO has again and again pioneered quantity savings on electric power for home users. This chart shows the happy result. Since 1941, while the general cost of living has more than doubled, VEPCO's average charge for a kilowatt-hour of home power has dropped 36%. And VEPCO's new low rate will make the average price even lower!

Who can save under VEPCO's new home rate

Any VEPCO residential electric customer living in his own or rented single-family house or separately metered single-family apartment, and having or installing a VEPCO-approved Electric Storage Water Heater for normal use can qualify for this new rate. This new saving is for residential users only, and is not available for commercial establishments. Use the coupon now to have your Electric Water Heating approved. It can mean important savings to you—even bigger savings if, in addition to your Electric Water Heater, you also heat electrically.
